A networking hub for partners in the South Atlantic LCC

A message to all members of South Atlantic LCC

Thank you for joining the website and welcome to the monthly email newsletter from the South Atlantic LCC. This newsletter will serve as a monthly update on LCC progress and will highlight new resources available on the website. Feel free to forward this newsletter to others who may be interested.

News from Ken McDermond, SALCC Coordinator

We're off and running!

Last week marked a milestone in the formation of the South Atlantic LCC. On February 1& 2 the inaugural meeting of the partnership's Steering Committee was held in Raleigh at the NC Wildlife Resource Commission headquarters. This meeting solidified the investment of a variety of organizations in...

News from Rua Mordecai, SALCC Science Coordinator

Working across LCC boundaries

Landscape Conservation Cooperatives are supposed to be a seamless network across the entire US. Of course, it's easy to say that but making it happen is still a work in progress. I've had some great conversations with the neighboring LCCs, the Southeast Climate Science Center, and the national network of LCC Science Coordinators about how we can best share ideas and collaborate on projects. So far most of our cross-border collaboration has been pretty informal (calls, discussions at...

Your ideas

Ken and I spend a lot of time talking with folks from different organizations. Three things that we're always trying to find out are: 1) The type of decisions folks would like help with, 2) The type of information and tools they'd like the LCC to produce, and 3) How the LCC could be more effective. The problem is that we just can't talk with everyone. While we'll be talking about these 3 questions with the various committees of the SALCC we wanted to make sure everyone had a chance to...

How to get engaged in the SALCC right now

We've been hearing from a bunch of folks wanting to know the best way to get "plugged in" to the SALCC. While we hope to have some additional (and more formal) ways to get involved after the February steering committee meeting, there are already a number of ways you can help influence LCC decisions and keep up with LCC progress right now:

- Join the website. Not only will you get a monthly email newsletter on LCC progress but we will also contact you periodically to review and...
